Discovering Engaging Stories:
QUT Digital Collections evolving, preserving and describing cultural, heritage and institutional materials

Since 2012, QUT Digital Collections has provided online access to QUT institutional and cultural heritage materials. Through curation, research, community collaboration and the addition of rich metadata these collections of digital assets reveal emerging and engaging stories, some of which have been showcased through exhibitions and public events. We invite you to explore and discover QUT’s unique culture and history. The new prototype data visualisation will complement the existing site and will enable more visual access to the variety of material in the collections.
