

14th International Digital Curation Conference

WELCOME to #idcc19!

Kevin Ashley – Director, DCC
@kevingashley

What I'm here to do

- Give some practical information
- Explain who we are and why we do this
- Help set the tone for the next 3 days

About us – The Digital Curation Centre

- Mission – to increase capability and capacity for research data reuse in organisations
- Training, shared services, consultancy, events, guidance, policy, standards, futures

The screenshot shows the Digital Curation Centre (DCC) website homepage. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the DCC logo and the tagline "because good research needs good data". A search bar is located on the right side of the navigation bar. Below the navigation bar, there is a main content area with a grid of articles and sections. The main content area includes a "Latest news" section with three articles: "Data curation in medical science and healthcare" (18 January, 2019), "Christine Kenneally talks about the impact of data on real lives" (14 January, 2019), and "DMPonline: up, up and away" (19 December, 2018). There is also a "Next events" section. Below the main content area, there are three columns of featured content: "How can the DCC help you?" (with sub-sections "About us" and "What is digital curation?"), "Editor's choice" (with sub-sections "DMPonline & DMPTool roadmap" and "Research Infrastructure Self-Evaluation (RISE)"), and "Recent blog posts" (with sub-sections "Let the ideas flow...", "Work together, not alone: doing things the Batswana way", and "Roadmap back to school edition").

What's IDCC about?

- Curating digital content – what, when, how, where, who by and why not
- Telling others about what you do, what you plan to do, what works, what doesn't
- Listening
- Learning
- Connecting
- Collaborating

Practical info - rooms

- Four locations for main conference sessions – one in another building
 - Another for the unconference on Thursday
- Special hats & QR codes are your friends
- Cluster together in break-out rooms
- NO food or drink in any space
- Use the microphones – chairs to repeat questions where necessary
- We'll share pictures – let us know if you don't want to be in them

dcc.as.uk

Practical info – refreshments etc

- Lunches upstairs in atrium
- Coffee at rear of atrium or near posters (afternoon)
- Toilets – back of Atrium & other locations
- Dinner tonight – see joining instructions or ask at desk for directions
- Your badge gives you access to university staff club
- Wifi – eduroam & dedicated network available

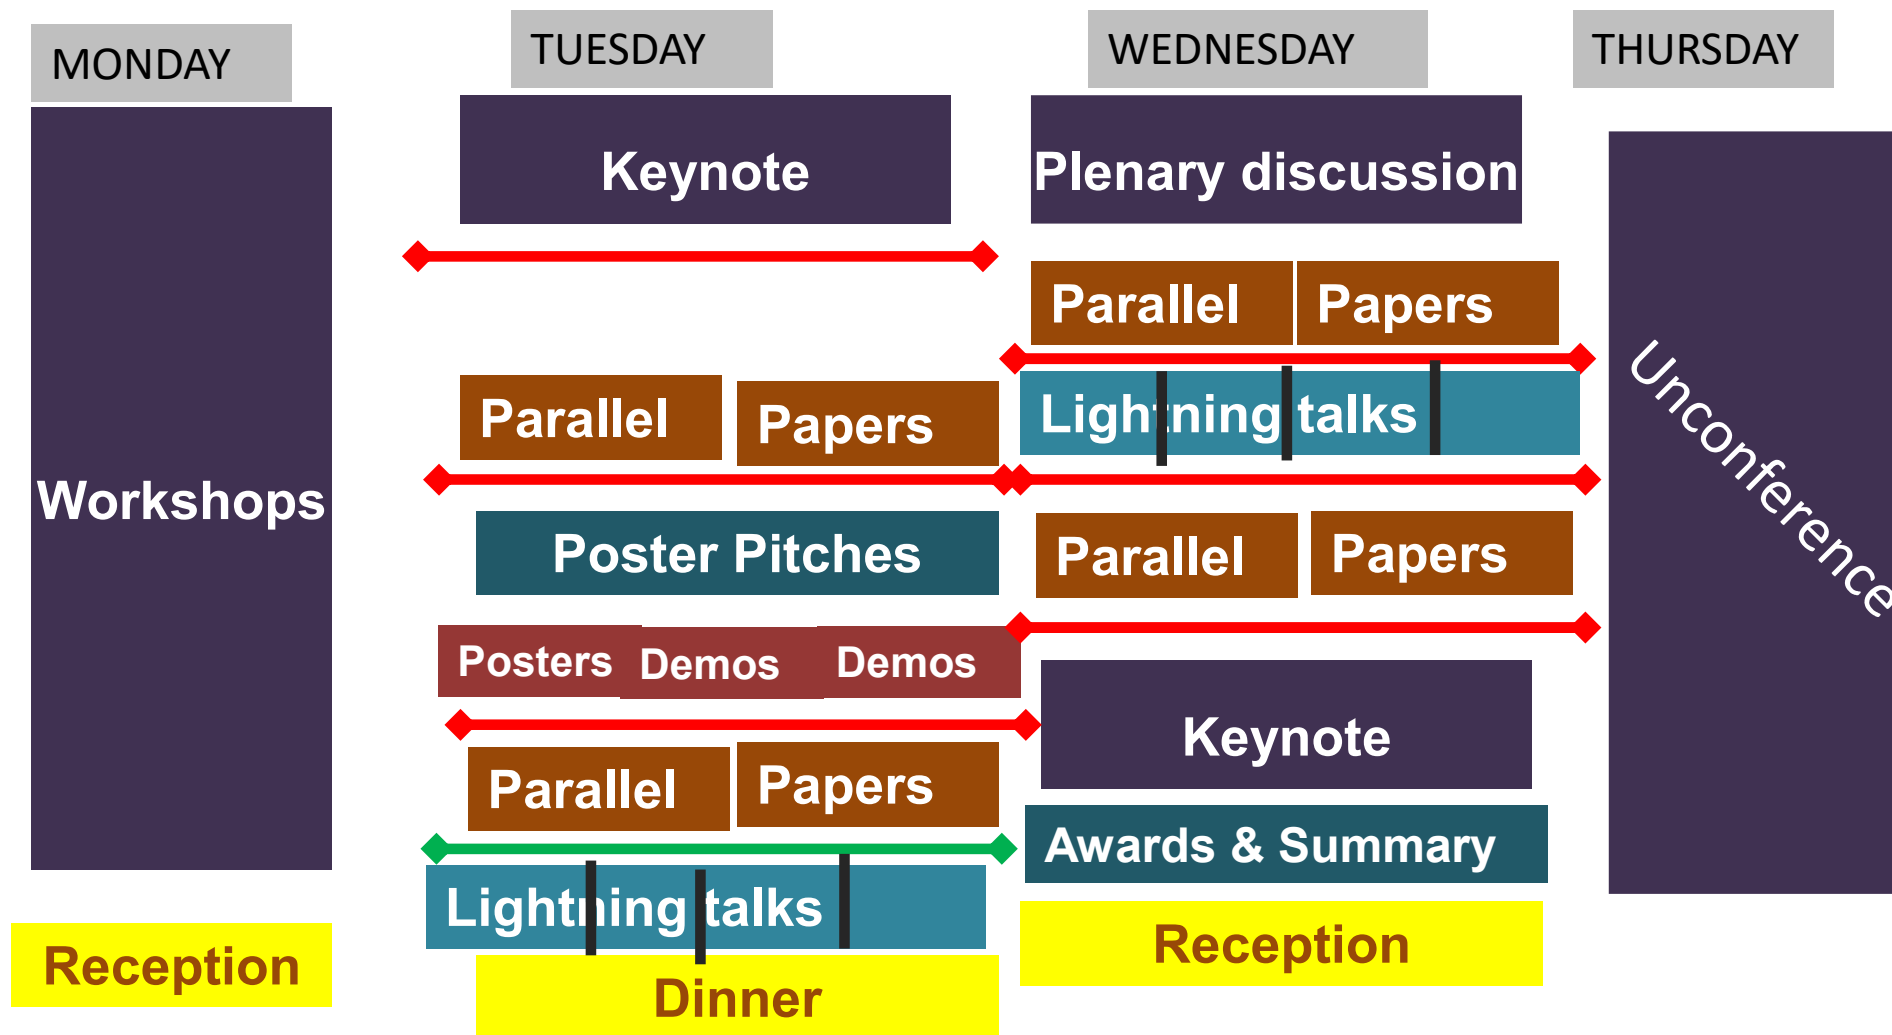

dcc.ac.uk

Practical info – posters and more

- Get yours up if it isn't already
- Poster presenters – be here 15 minutes before lunch ends for minute madness
- Voting – we have a google form
- Speakers & chairs – meet each other beforehand
- Collaboration spaces – all around us. Use them!

Conference structure

dcc.ac.uk

Similarities, differences

- Patricia Brennan's keynote – now remote
- Thursday's unconference – you can feed in to the agenda at any time
- Tomorrow's opening plenary – a discussion:
 - Contribute via <http://bit.ly/IDCC19Dialogue>

And now...

- Listen
- Talk
- Interact
- Be inspired to do something

Thanks to our sponsors

